

Australian High Commission Atrium Gallery

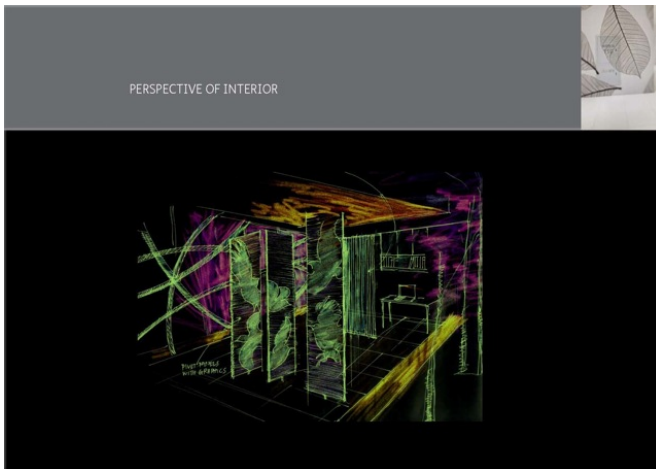

IngeniOZ provides a snapshot of the broad scope of projects that leading Australian design agency Woodhead is engaged in throughout the Asia-Pacific region, with a focus on 10 prominent, environmentally sustainable design solutions that demonstrate the diversity and innovation of design work undertaken across the region.

The Australian High Commission cordially invites you to a reception and viewing of Designing for Successful Singaporeans and IngeniOZ: Australian Design Talent to Singapore.

6.30pm, 20 November 2009
Australian High Commission Atrium Gallery
25 Napier Road

RSVP is essential for security purposes. Email your name to public-affairs-sing@dfat.gov.au, and bring along photo ID on the day.

Designing for Successful Singaporeans presents works-in-progress from Singaporean students studying the prestigious Master of Design program offered by Sydney's College of Fine Arts (COFA). The students have researched various aspects of what it is to be a successful Singaporean to create conceptual spaces, objects or graphics that interrogate sociological, psychological, cultural and historical constructs of success.

As part of Singapore Design Festival 2009, the Australian High Commission is delighted to host two exciting new exhibitions - IngeniOZ: Australian Design Talent to Singapore and Designing for Successful Singaporeans.

The exhibitions are part of OZmosis2009: Directions in Australian Design and run until 30 December. For more information on the OZmosis2009 program, please visit www.australia.org.sg.

Please note that there is no parking on premises. The nearest carpark is at Gleneagles Hospital or the Botanic Gardens. All visitors will need to submit to airport style security checks.
